Budapest The artillery barracks located in the Tuezer utca, reconstructed on a priority basis a few months are, is currently occupied by Hungarian artillery troops. These are probably AA troops, as they have been observed training in a nearby field with a few AA guns. Aircraft locating equipment is also frequently observed. b. A fully functioning Honved military hospital is located across from the artillery barracks. c. A Russian quartermaster unit is stationed in one section of the former central Honved warehouse in the Lehel utca, and a rations dump is located there. Entrance to the Lehel utca is through a large red door which is constantly guarded by two or three Russian soldiers armed with sub-machine guns. Hungarian units are stationed in other sections of the warehouse. d. - d. About noon on 20 March 1950 the Tuezer utca and the artillery barracks were filled with between 100 and 200 T-34/85 tanks manned by Hungarian crews. These tanks were probably brought to Budapest in connection with a large-scale military parade scheduled for 4 April. On the same date, according to local rumor, large Russian units were in north-south movement along the Gaci utca; it is presumed they remained in Budapest. It is believed possible that no such movement took place, and that the rumor was launched deliberately for propaganda purposes.
- e. Hungarian units stationed in the Tuezer utca barracks and nearby are made up of young recruits. They engage in daily company drill and instruction. Some of these troops are armed with Russian Mosint (?)—Nagant rifles which are fitted with long chrome—plated bayonets. Other companies are fully armed with Russian sub-machine guns. On parade these troops wear flat caps of police type.

2. Körmend

On 8 March 1950, firing exercises were held in the southern part of the grounds of K8rmend's Batthyany Castle. Some 300 Russian troops and about eight type T-34/85 tanks took part. Tanks were deployed in a staggered checkerboard formation, and fire was laid down between them.

3. Jak

Sixty-two police militiamen in grey uniforms are stationed in the village. Their CO, a lieutenant, was formerly a cobbler. None of them is a Communist, and in the entire village there are only four or five true Communists.

4. Szekesfeherver

- a. The barracks in the Budai ut, on whose grounds additional buildings were constructed during 1949, is currently occupied by Russian infantry, artillery, and tank troops totalling at least 1,500 nen. These are probably transient troops consisting of units in reserve for military manogurers along the frontier.
- b. In the barracks courtyard, behind stone walls, there are parked some 50-60 T34/85 tanks. Infantry troops possess approximately 15 rocket launchers and 30 motor vehicles for transport of launchers, also light and heavy machine guns and approximately 100-150 Model 37, 82 mm. rocket launchers. Also in the courtyard, enclosed by barbed wire, is a dump of 150-200 barrels of motor fuel.
- c. During training exercises Russiar troops frequently use cas masks.
- e. In the former 17th Regiment barracks and in a nearby mirls' school there are quartered 200-300 Hungarian troops whose only armament consists of Russian rifles.
- f. In the Zamolyi ut barracks, there is stationed a Russian artillery unit whose armament includes about 6 type 39/8.5 cm. heavy AA batteries and two or three "Matjuska's".

5. Börgönd

In January 1950 approximately 400 recruits, average age 18, were called up for "voluntary" military service at Böröbnd airport, and are currently undergoing training there. There are about 50 instructors whose uniforms bear red insignia. Two buildings for officers quarters have been constructed near the airport; a third is under construction.

6. Tac

Reconstruction of buildings at Tac airport, currently under way, is almost finished, and the airport has been united with that of Sos-to.
